The exact same antivirus software that we used to test during our previous review of Anuraag Active Antivirus from SysTools, The exact same antivirus software that we used to test during our previous review of Anuraag Active Antivirus from SysTools, for Windows 7 64-bit, and for Windows XP 32-bit. To run our tests, we used a clean, factory-fresh, up-to-date installation of Windows 7 64-bit in VMWare Player. We installed Anuraag Active Antivirus on a system that did not have any other installed antivirus programs. Before starting the actual testing of the application, we started an Internet connection, used the Safari web browser to load some random pages, and activated all the browser add-ons, including the Flash, Java and PDF plugins. This allowed the system to be thoroughly tested for any possible security holes or vulnerabilities in the browser. In the Advanced Settings of the program, we set its "Real-Time Protection" option to "On", so that the program would scan our system in real time. We used the following websites for our tests: Google, Bing, Yahoo, Yandex, WikiAnswers, StatCounter, RapidShare, Steam and Social. Like in our previous review, we found that Anuraag Active Antivirus required the following versions of the browser plug-ins: Like in our previous review, we found that Anuraag Active Antivirus required the following versions of the browser plug-ins: * Adobe Flash Player. * Java. * Adobe Reader. * Adobe Flash. * Google Chrome PDF Viewer. The final tests for this review showed that the application worked as advertised. The final tests for this review showed that the application worked as advertised. After a few minutes of running
