User Reviews I've found some time ago that there is something missing when i want to listen to my anime stuff. I've heard about a multi tracker that can serve a bunch of different websites and can also play/listen to my anime stuff if i couldn't find any at that time (i'm sorry if i've wronged before). I would like to thank the developers that created that tool. It's really helpfull and i can't imagine that i'd be able to listen to my anime stuff if i couldn't have this software is to heavy for your computer (i've seen in my computer that i've installed this software) here is an easy installer that you can find on this same website. It's lightweight and allow you to make a full-out installation without risk or action needed. Nakamura Toshiro Posting: 2011-02-19 at 08:18 Naruto is the better name of the software if you are not from Japan. I usually use at least 2 other trackers for this purpose. It would be nice to have a history of the anime trackers I have downloaded before. It seems I have created a database of them. I would want to keep track of my activities. It would also be nice to see the total number of trackers I have installed after a fresh install. Well done. I can easily see that it is a light version of the tracker to be found at mario Posting: 2012-05-18 at 14:51 I have never heard of this software and its name "Naruto". Interesting to say the least. I think that this is totally different from your previous work. If you check out my comments below you'll find that I have decided to give this one a try. That being said, I must say that I could not get this program from the desktop. I do not know whether it was in the wrong folder (I was a little scared) or it 09e8f5149f
