Toolbox from V01.05.01 and higher and Step 7 from V5.4 SP2 and higher are required. Toolbox and Protector. PLC Basic Program for SINUMERIK-840D-STEP 7 Sinumerik Add-on for STEP7 SINUMERIK 840D sl. 1/7. Industry solutions and machining technologies. . My flash drives dont show up in windows Explorer, my system has worked just fine for a year with the same flash drives, I guess this problem may have caused my password to be reset, I opened my user account and the last password i set was 36 hours ago, I cant remember what my password is now. Can anyone tell me how to reset my password or get my flash drives working again? Thanks. Hello and welcome to Seven Forums! Flash drives are partitioned into blocks. Each block has a "logical address" when the system thinks of it. For example, block 1, block 2, block3... and so on. Each of these blocks has a header. The header tracks several blocks. The header of block 1 has the header of block 2, the header of block 3, and so on. Since the flash drive is partitioned into blocks, Windows can detect that there are many USB flash drives installed. There is a large number of memory with logical addresses and headers. Windows thinks you have too many flash drives, so it will automagically ask you for your password to unlock the drive. So, do you know your password? If not, you can reset it here: Otherwise, check the partition table or the DOS partition table to see if there are any changes. If Windows knows your password, it will change it because it did not like your last password. You can't change your password here, you need to contact Windows Support. We'll have somebody from support answer you with a solution. Until that happens, you can try these steps here on Sevenforums.com to unlock your flash drive. You just need to cancel the add-on for STEP 7 Sinumerik Add-on for STEP7 the Blocks 1,2,3,4,5,6,7 that you are interested in, I don't know how to do this - if it is possible; if not, what have I to do to remove the add-on. Well, I opened my User account and the last Password
