AdviÑ[e: â€¢ Purchase not only textbooks, but also books that teach audiovisual art and teaching methods. Each book contains detailed explanations and illustrations. These books will help you to master the course in the way that is usually done by direct "immersion" in the practice of teaching. \tDemand answers to questions that arise. The main criterion to use when choosing a book is that its content should not only motivate you, but also show how the habits already formed and the basic knowledge gained in the classroom can be easily introduced into teaching practice. Of course, it is important that the book was first of all interesting, and then useful. The main content of the book should contain not only knowledge about the principles and methodology of teaching, but, more importantly, knowledge itself. This is precisely the main problem with most textbooks, when reading which information is simply absorbed into memory. The book you are about to read should not just teach you some theoretical points or methods developed in the process of learning; it should help you understand the basics of how to form the habits you need to succeed in your school of choice. Finally, the book should help, not limit you. This is extremely important, because if
